

OUR SICK AND WOUNDED.

ARRIVAL OF THE HOSPITAL SHIP DANIEL WEBSTER.

The Daniel Webster reached the dock, at the foot of Canal street, early on Sunday morning, with sick and wounded. One hundred and thirty-four of the New-York and Pennsylvania men were sent to the Park Hospital, & to the New-England Relief Rooms [in greater part of whom were sent at once to their friends], and 53 to Bedloe's Island.

J. Roberts, an old man of 68, through the kind intervention of Col. Howe, was relieved from the service, and sent to his home in Wisconsin. Lieut. Adair of Company G, Co'd Ohio, a splendid specimen of humanity, six feet in his stockings and well proportioned, though shot through the breast, is doing well, and comes over with pain.

W. G. Robinson was wounded in both arms and in the thigh; but he will soon be ready to face back again upon the enemy.

U. J. Swaye of the 5th Mass., was in the battle of Bull's Bluff, where his arm was shattered, and at Fair Oaks, where he was wounded in the thigh, and at West Point, where he escaped unharmed. He was one of six appointed to carry Gen. Pettigrew of South Carolina across the Chickahominy. He was severely entered by the officer in command to carry him [Pettigrew] carefully, to keep him up from the water. To do that they waded to their waist. At that time he caught cold, and ever since he has suffered from rheumatism in the wounded arm, and from pleurisy in the side. He goes home sick and wounded. He states that a Spanish slave-driver, at the battle of West Point, forced 300 slaves to take part in the fight—and when the battle was over, he saw numbers of blacks armed and equipped, bearing Minie rifles.

A majority of the men who came on the Daniel Webster were in the late battles, and they say, with spirit and emphasis, that the Rebels have been badly whipped, and they are only anxious to get well of their wounds, and return once more to the seat of war.

Ten or dozen contrabands on board the Daniel Webster make themselves useful as servants, and accompany the ship regularly.
